Green Risk Professional™ designation awarded to Disaster Kleenup International

Arlington, Texas (January 4, 2010) – Vale Training Solutions, a leading provider of education services to the insurance industry for over 60 years, announced that Disaster Kleenup International (DKI) is the first property damage restoration organization in the insurance industry to have achieved the Green Risk Professional™ (GRP™) designation.

Property owners understand the long term advantages of 'going green' and insurance carriers have responded with green coverage for new environmentally sustainable construction or renovation following a loss.

Jon McCreath, President of Vale Training Solutions, says "As more carriers offer green coverage, independent adjusters, restoration professionals, and engineers must be adequately trained and possess the expertise and professionalism necessary to understand the makeup of green construction and building products, rating systems and insurance coverage."

McCreath said, "GRP™ adjusters and restoration professionals provide the expertise necessary when buildings are insured with 'upgrade to green' endorsements or where restoration/repairs include green measures to replace damaged traditional products"

DKI partnered with Vale for Green Risks training as the market demand for building green continues to achieve significant momentum. The curriculum provided in Vale's Green Risks courses has allowed DKI to continue at the forefront of industry trends.

"We have pioneered this movement by being the first and only disaster restoration and reconstruction organization to be green risk certified in building reconstruction and restoration services," said Dale Sailer, president of DKI. "DKI understands that in today's environment, individuals and organizations continually strive to do their part in building or creating green environments."

Offered exclusively at Vale, the Green Risk Professional™ training and designation signifies individuals with a thorough understanding of green building and green products.
